...We in love to our Brethren that lie in Prisons...and many in Fetters and Irons, and have been cruelly beat by the cruel Gaolers, and many have been persecuted to Death, and have died in Prison, and many lie sick and weak in Prison, and on Straw. So we in Love to our Brethren do offer up our Bodies and Selves to you, for to put us as Lamps into the same Dungeons...and do stand ready a Sacrifice for to go into their Places in Love to our Brethren, that they may go forth, and that they may not die in Prison, as many of the Brethren are already.

— Joseph Beese's letter to the English parliament signed by 164 of his fellow Quakers, 1659
